Tips for the Application and Interviews

• The process itself is valuable – it makes you think hard about your motivations and ambitions

• Be aware of your own ‘project’ and what you uniquely offer – give examples which show where you have made a difference

• Research your proposed institution carefully and explain why you have chosen it (you do not need to have been accepted)

• Think about your long-term career aspirations (20-30 years) and be able to articulate the benefit to Australia

• Enjoy the interviews: The Panel is interested in you and your project
